As the Galactic Empire continues its research on Endor, a forest planet located on the Outer Rim, new reports of Ewok enslavement have surfaced.

Under Imperial Decree A-SL-4557.607.232, the enslavement of hundreds of Ewoks has taken place on Endor as of late. The judicial punishment comes from “crimes against the civil order” mandated under Emperor Palpatine's Imperial Decree A-SL-4557.607.232.

The enslavement comes from repeated offenses against the construction of a shield generator complex on Endor. According to several Storm Troopers stationed on the forest planet, several Ewoks had been terrorizing Imperial positions. While the severity of offenses has yet to be disclosed by the Empire, it is reported that the offenses resulted in deaths on both sides.

“The savage resistance posed by the natives has been nothing but annoyance for the Empire. The barbaric natives are simply too primitive and uncultured to understand the goals of the Empire. As a result, the capture and enslavement of these beings was ordered.”

This account from an anonymous Storm Trooper stationed on Endor, further explains the actions taken by the Empire.

In addition to the Ewoks that have been enslaved by the Empire, Alliance Captain Junas Turner was captured by Imperial soldiers. While the Empire has not disclosed if the Ewoks were in cahoots with Turner, information about Turner's presence on the planet was touched on.

According to the Imperial fleet that was responsible for the capture and imprisonment of Turner: “Alliance Captain Junas Turner had one job on Endor; to locate the construction of the New Death Star. We have great reason to believe that Turner had every intention to prevent the Empire from any construction efforts, and we are glad to report his immediate capture and imprisonment in the Balis-Barugh prison station.”

Despite repeated setbacks on construction, a spokesperson for the Empire maintains that construction is still taking place and swiftly. “We have our eyes set on the final goal; and no one will get in the way of that.”
